Dear Mr. Purves:

My short stay in Washington was crowded brim-full with activities for every moment. I did stop by, but failed to find you and therefore did not keep my promise to see you before my return; which is regrettable, since I am sure I would have gained from an interview.

I trust we can become better acquainted, and that possibly if this cannot be done in Washington, it can be done at the time of your visit to California.

I greatly appreciate your efforts in behalf of the profession, and assure you of my willingness to assist and cooperate with you in every manner possible.

Yours very truly,

THE REAL COMMUNISTS

By David Lawrence

An Article Appearing in
The United States News Magazine
November 14, 1947.

The real communists are not in Hollywood.

Nor are they to be found in any substantial number in the rank and file of American labor unions.

The real collectivists and socialists are in Washington -- in the high places of government, in the high councils of national labor unions, in the high councils of the Democratic party.

For the real communists which America must combat are not those who are in league with foreign governments or who are "subversive" in the sense that they wish to see our form of government overthrown by physical force.

America has only a handful of communists who sympathize with totalitarianism in Russia or are really working in the interests of a foreign power.

But America has many citizens whose loyalty to the United States is unquestioned and who yet are the enemies of our risk-capital system. They are doing everything in their power to overthrow it by political means.

The enemies of our system of risk capitalism are for the most part conscientious citizens with a sincere conviction that state socialism is better for America than the "free enterprise system." They do not avow that belief. They would be offended if called by any other label except "liberals."

This very group, however, strives to destroy our system of risk capitalism. They really want government capital and government control substituted and some form of planned economy established, with the government as master. This group is infiltrating our government, our churches, our schools and colleges.

Undermining tactics: The underlying strategy at the moment of the group is to break down America's strongest sinew of strength -- the profit-and-loss system.

In recent months the main attack against the profit-and-loss system has come from the strategists in the CIO, aided and abetted by Democrats of the radical school of thought in Congress.

The objective seems to be to undermine all confidence in the profit-and-loss system, first, by arguing that profits are too high and, second, by attributing all price increases to "profiteering" and playing down the part that wage increases or agricultural conditions or scarcities of materials have played in the inflation of prices.

Confusing the facts on profits: The attack isn't subtle. It is out in the open. It starts with the emphasis on the numerical size of profits. It ignores the large volume of business done in an inflationary period and the fact that profits have not changed materially in ratio when related to the national income. It omits mentioning that the profit dollar is taxed twice and that the purchasing power of the profit dollar has shrunk by 51 per cent while the worker's dollar has diminished 39 per cent.

It ignores, moreover, the fact that profit margins or per cent per dollar of sales have not varied materially from pre-war averages. It overlooks entirely the fact that the book value of capital in terms of the cost of plant or buildings or equipment is low and that any use of "net worth" when applied to 1939 figures will necessarily be wrong today. For the "book value" of capital is not a true picture on which to make measurements of profit.

A locomotive still running today was bought at about $50,000 in pre-war days. A new one costs about $150,000. A plant unit to produce an ingot of steel is on the books at a depreciated level of about $50 whereas a new unit would cost close to $200 today.

Plant is wearing out. Machinery must be replaced at present-day costs -- not "book value" costs. Where is the capital coming from to replace what is worn out?

Fortunately, the excess-profits tax was repealed in time to prevent the worst depression America would have faced in her whole history. The communists or radicals call it a "windfall" and ignore the economic implications altogether. They want fixed expenses increased because one or two years of readjustment show numerical profits to be high. They ignore the fact that the ratio of profit to total sales in 1947, according to the Department of Commerce figures, is less than eight-tenths of one per cent above that of 1929.

After eliminating the inventory profits, which are temporary, and the benefits due to carryback provisions in the tax laws, corporate profits in 1946 were lower than in 1945. This is the statement recently made by the economic staff of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress in response to inquiries from the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

The nation owes a debt of thanks to the conservatives in Congress who foresaw the need both for the repeal of the excess-profits taxes immediately after the war and for the carryback provisions that have so well cushioned the transition period.

There are, nevertheless, radicals in Congress who have so little regard for economic reasoning that they now want to put back the excess-profits tax on the mistaken theory that it will hold down prices. What they really want is a managed economy -- a public utility status for most industries and government-created monopolies and cartels. Yet they vehemently deny any such purpose and consider themselves "liberals."

Some of the enemies of our risk-capital system are merely demagogues who distort the economic facts of life, but some of them are good men who just do not know what makes the wheels go round in a profit-and-loss or risk-capital system.

Everybody on the same "level": The most conspicuous example of this is to be found in the attitude toward tax reduction on the part of many Democrats. Some, to be sure, go along blindly with the Administration without stopping to think what the implications of their position really are. Others know what they are after -- they want to reduce all earnings to a level of so-called equality. They want to put the skilled and the unskilled, the talented and the untalented all on the same footing. They belittle managements skill at every opportunity.

The communistic doctrine, too, is based on a levelling of incomes. Many of our American communists don't know that in Russia the original revolutionary concept came to be modified after some practical experience with human nature. Some rewards are given today in Russia to the skilled workers. Some incentive systems have been adopted. Private capital and private ownership of the means of production are, however, still tabooed.

But in America the first step in the original approach apparently has been introduced -- not as communism, of course, but as so-called "liberalism". It is plainly a move in the direction of state socialism.

"The Real Communists"

Penalizing the thrifty: In the message of President Truman last summer vetoing the tax bill, for instance, is to be found the equivalent of the original bring-everybody-to-the-same-level doctrine of the communists. He argues, in effect, that the successful must be penalized, that thrift is not to be rewarded, that tax reduction must not benefit those who by their very earnings have achieved an advanced position.

The Democratic Administration's argument is that proportionate tax reductions from high wartime rates cannot be given those upon whom the burden fell heaviest during the war. These men must continue indefinitely to bear tax burdens. They have felt the biggest cut by the tax collector in take-home pay of any group in America since 1939, and on top of this has come inflation's cut in purchasing power.

There is no more certain way to kill risk capitalism than to punish the managerial class.

The managerial class usually furnishes investment money for the purchase of stock equities. Today this market has dried up. The middle class is pinched by inflation and the Administration denies it tax relief. Companies that were not fortunate enough to earn big profits in 1946 and 1947 cannot expand or replace outworn equipment to increase production because they do not have sufficient earnings to justify bond issues and they cannot find a market for the sale of stock. The investor class foresees no dividends high enough to be worth the risk as long as tax rates are virtually confiscatory.

The system of risk capitalism can be demolished by a refusal to relieve individuals of wartime tax rates, thus destroying incentives and depriving the middle class of a chance to save money for investment.

The enemies of the system of risk capitalism are the unwitting exponents and allies of the communist philosophy.

2. Describe nominee's notable work in design, to bring out the particular achievements the nominators believe have notably contributed to the advancement of the profession.

Adrian Wilson long has been an exponent of the practical in design, preferring to give the most to the community. In his work for the City and County of Los Angeles, as in other instances of Government assignment, he has held to the premise that the structure must not belie the trust which the commission carries and which the taxpayers have vested in him. In his work for private enterprise, always he has had the highest regard for an established budget and in fact has earned an enviable reputation overseas, as well as in his native Southland, for his budget control ability.

The nominators feel that the sincerity with which he has so consistently performed in his far-reaching activities has done much to instill a deep-seated admiration for and gain lasting confidence in the American architectural profession, not only domestically but internationally.

NOMINEE'S ACHIEVEMENTS IN SERVICE TO THE INSTITUTE

1. State fully the nominee's signal service to The Institute, his chapter, or his state association, or to the profession, which the nominators believe has notably contributed to the advancement of the profession, and list the offices in architectural organizations occupied by the nominee and the period of each.

In 1942 Adrian Wilson became a member of the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. He was extremely active in the Institute's affairs as a Committee Member, Committee Chairman and Officer of the Chapter. His record with the Chapter:

Director	1944
Director	1945
Vice-President	1946-1947
President	1947-1948
Director	1948-1949

As President of the Southern California Chapter of the A.I.A., Mr. Wilson established policies of having ex-Chapter Presidents serve for a period of at least one year as Director of the Chapter.

In his early career and in serving the Southern California Chapter, Mr. Wilson was leader in a program to open up membership in the American Institute of Architects to women.

The initial necessity of raising individual member's dues to the Chapter was also instigated at that time and Mr. Wilson assisted in the activity.

In the early years of Mr. Wilson's association with the Chapter, the legislative affairs of the Profession were handled by an organization known as the State Association of California Architects with a northern and southern division. Every licensed Architect in the State of California, whether or not a member of the Institute, was a member of the State Association. Mr. Wilson worked diligently with dedicated members of the Institute throughout the State of California, in bringing about the organization of the California Council of Architects which replaced the State Association of California Architects in 1946, and he served as Delegate to the California Council in 1946 and 1947. His record with the California Council:

Delegate	1946
Delegate	1947
Vice-President	1947-1948
President	1948-1949

During the period of his California Chapter and Council terms of Office, and while serving as a member and Chairman of the Legislative Committee, he realized the weakness of using members of the Profession as representatives before the State Legislature, and started a program of employing paid professional directorship to handle legislative affairs. To accomplish this, increased funds were required by both the Chapter and the Council, and Adrian Wilson working with a few other members of the Institute, was instrumental in bringing about a program to provide suitable publications in both the Chapter and the Council. Mr. Wilson and the same devoted group had a great deal to do with the breaking down of the barriers against paid advertising in such publications, which was the source of revenue necessary to employ a paid Director. This was accomplished during Mr. Wilson's first term as President of the California Council.

For ten years he has been Ambassador at Large of the Far East Society of Architects and Engineers. During that period he has supplied information and data to the Far East Society which has been of great benefit, indirectly, to the architectural Profession of Japan, and subsequently built up good will amongst members of the Profession internationally.

Adrian Wilson is a member of the Society of American Military Engineers. Public relations between the Military Engineers and the architectural Profession have been improved greatly in the last 15 years as a result of a concentrated program on the part of members of the Profession to acquaint the Military with the benefits of good architectural practice. Mr. Wilson takes no personal credit for the overall improvement but certainly the activities of a few members of the Profession have had beneficial results.

NOMINEE'S ACHIEVEMENT IN PUBLIC SERVICE

1. List the public offices held by the nominee and the positions of trust held by him in recognition of civic leadership, and state clearly his notable work in public service and the particular influence of that work which the nominators believe to be a notable contribution to the advancement of the profession.

In 1929 Adrian Wilson, Architect, organized his own company and became a pioneer in the crusade to improve downtown Los Angeles, working relentlessly toward that goal, concentrating his efforts on the Civic Center area, and serving on the Committee appointed to promote its development.

Consultations were held with the Los Angeles County and City officials in the interest of resolving the parking problems adjacent to the Civic Center and downtown areas. Adrian Wilson worked with the former Chief Administrative Officer of the City of Los Angeles, the late Arthur J. Will, in securing approval of the Los Angeles City Council to abandon certain secondary streets in order that a Federal Customs Building in Los Angeles could be properly located, avoiding the blocking of a future East-West City Mall. This entailed considerable effort and included visits to Washington, D.C.

Meetings were held with the Traffic Departments of the City and County of Los Angeles in establishing a plan of correlation between private and public traffic for proper circulation in connection with proposed underground parking garages at Civic Center.

Over a period of 15 years Mr. Wilson has worked with the County Administrators, the County Engineering Division, and the Department of Building and Safety, and has exerted influence in improving relations between public officials and the profession. He has been responsible for the introduction of several new procedures and policies.

Specifically, this has brought about better understanding of the Architects' responsibility and authority, a speeding up of County checking of plans by the assignment of one County checker for an entire project from its beginning to completion, and for the simplification of the checking procedure and improved standard specifications.

Mr. Wilson has spent considerable time and effort working with the profession, the construction industry, and with the Building Departments of the County and State, also the State Fire Marshal in eliminating overlapping jurisdiction and conflicting ordinances, resulting in rezoning in the formation of the Building Standard's Commission, and a uniform Code for all State Agencies.

As a member of the Los Angeles Downtown Business Men's Association for seven years, Adrian Wilson has led numerous activities in connection with the master-planning of the downtown area in relation to the Civic Center plan.

Pre-Civic Center design meetings were held with the Historical Society, Native Sons and Daughters of California, Los Angeles County Arboretum Group and with a special advisory art committee established by Los Angeles County to confer on the use of sculpture in the Civic Center.

The Los Angeles Civic Center Mall, now nearing fulfillment of Wilson's dream and master-planning, will be one of the most beautiful in the country. Two of the more important segments with which he was associated are the Los Angeles County Court House and the Los Angeles County Hall of Administration. The underground parking garages, now under construction, and the Mall which, eventually, will cover them, both Adrian Wilson projects, are further evidence of his campaign to give the City of Los Angeles the heart he feels it needs and deserves. A further improvement in his beloved Civic Center will be the new Criminal Courts Building currently being designed in the Adrian Wilson Home Office.

Mr. Wilson has been a member of the Los Angeles County Board of Building and Safety and at one time worked with a group of Los Angeles citizens who were instrumental in having the State Division of Highways adopt a master plan for Freeways.

For 20 years Adrian Wilson has been a member of the Construction Industries Branch of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and during that time has worked on numerous affairs connected with civic improvement.

Mr. Wilson was one of the founding members of the Construction Industries Foundation which embraced many branches of the building industry. The Construction Industries Foundation was created to unite the industry in all public relations programs and to promote better understanding within the industry, with public officials, and with other industries and organizations on projects and activities, for the realization of objectives for the general public welfare. Mr. Wilson was Secretary of the Foundation for five years.

Adrian Wilson was a member of The Beavers which is another public relations organization connected with the construction industry.

He enthusiastically supports the Los Angeles Beautiful Division of the Chamber of Commerce, financially and morally, and has supplied material for various meetings together with program information.

He is a member of a special committee appointed by the Mayor of Los Angeles to do a pilot study for a proposed convention center site.

He has served as Chairman for Membership Solicitation within the architectural profession in the Los Angeles area for the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Adrian Wilson has worked with numerous groups sponsoring and developing public housing, and with the Portland Cement Association, Lumbermen's Association and other similar groups developing standards and prefabrication methods to reduce cost of low-income housing.

The Planning Commission of the City of Los Angeles consulted Adrian Wilson on a comprehensive zoning plan to establish high-rise zoning areas, and as a private citizen he has done similar work with the City of Newport Beach.

In his early professional career, Wilson wrote several articles on housing (reproductions available), which appeared in national publications.

He has worked with Public Health and Welfare groups for the County of Los Angeles, assisting in the development of a master plan for the Los Angeles County Hospital complex, including plans, roads, standardization of utility systems, feeding systems, communications systems, et cetera.

As a member of the Glendale Optimists Club for 15 years, Adrian Wilson has worked with members in connection with boys' programs, making regular financial contribution to their activities, and on the expansion of Glendale community affairs, including the establishment of parking areas for the City of Glendale.

More recently, in connection with boys' programs, he has contributed to the Big Brothers of Orange County and is serving in a personal "big brother" capacity in support of that organization.

Adrian Wilson is a member of the Architectural Guild at the University of Southern California, and as such has cooperated in the employment of local students. He is a member of Dr. Knudsen's Committee to establish a School of Architecture at the University of Los Angeles.

In the widespread activities of Mr. Wilson's organization overseas, in Japan, Korea, Okinawa, Taiwan, the Philippines, Thailand, Pakistan and Turkey, sometimes it is evident that the profession is not understood, nor appreciated, in overseas areas. Just as the profession in the United States has struggled to elevate its position in our society, so are our foreign professional friends struggling. On numerous occasions it has been Mr. Wilson's privilege to point out and discuss methods for improvement, which has been accomplished by meetings held with foreign professional groups and individuals, by supplying numerous articles on various subjects which have been printed in the United States, and by magazine subscription. However, this has been accomplished best by the exchange of foreign students between his branch offices abroad and by his sponsorship of foreign nationals, (26 in number), for migration to this country and employment in his Home Office for various periods of training. On numerous occasions, foreign Architects and architectural students, on short-term visits, have been escorted about the City on a tour pointing out construction methods, better building materials and aesthetic advantages. Through his foreign offices, on request, Mr. Wilson's Home Office has frequently supplied data and information on materials, planning methods, and actual plans on structures, at considerable cost and effort.

In addition to membership in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, he holds membership in the California State Chamber of Commerce and United States Chamber of Commerce, also in the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce and Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce.

For ten years Mr. Wilson has been a member of the Japan-American Society working actively toward better relations and better appreciation and understanding of Oriental arts among the lay population of Southern California.

Mr. Wilson is a member of the Southland Water Committee.

Since 1932 he has been a member of the Jonathan Club.

Since 1919 he has been a Blue Lodge Mason.

Since 1957 he has been a member of the Desert Inn Country Club in Las Vegas.

Dear Win:

This will confirm that our Board of Directors has formally requested that the newly-formed National AIA Inquiry Committee review, from the standpoint of possible violation of the ethical canons, the Las Vegas bribery-conviction case of Adrian Wilson, FAIA.

We understand the Committee is already looking into the matter, but we wanted to formalize our stand with this correspondence.

You are probably aware that Mr. Wilson has applied for Member Emeritus status. A copy of his 13 June letter to Mrs. Marx indicated he had completed the form and sent it directly to the Octagon. It will be forwarded to us for action by our Board.

It would be our position at this time, to refrain from acting on the request for ME status until the ethical charge issue is resolved. Would that be feasible? We seek your guidance. Of course, we are aware that a ME is bound by the same ethical standards as a corporate member.

Re: Application for Membership Emeritus of Adrian Wilson, FAIA

Mr. Wilson's application is enclosed. Please advise us whether you approve.

I heard that he was convicted of bribery and is appealing the decision. This should not interfere with his right to become a Member Emeritus if he is eligible. Technically speaking, he is in good standing if he is not under suspension, which he is not, and if his dues are not in default.

If something were to develop later on in the way of disciplinary proceedings, as a Member Emeritus he would still be a member of the Institute subject to the same rules as everyone else. To put it another way, charges have been brought against members emeriti before and they have been penalized.
