

Welcome to the 2016 AIA/HUD Secretary's Awards

The Housing Knowledge Community of the American Institute of Architects (AIA), in conjunction with the Office of the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD), recognizes excellence in affordable housing architecture, neighborhood design, participatory design, and accessibility. Good design is a cornerstone of thriving homes and communities of all incomes and backgrounds. These awards demonstrate that design matters, and provide examples of important benchmarks in the housing industry.

Eligibility

Owners of structures and architects licensed in the United States may submit projects (located in the United States) of any size, budget, or style fitting the eligibility guidelines.

New construction, renovations, and restored developments in the United States are eligible. Only developments or projects completed after January 1, 2011, will be considered for this award.

Submissions to all award categories with the sole exception of the Community-Informed Design Award must include housing or a housing element. Also, submissions to all award categories must serve low- or mixed-income occupants and users (defined by either a minimum of 20 percent of occupants earning a maximum of 80 percent of the area median income, or by the funding sources utilized); the sole exception to this eligibility requirement is the Alan J. Rothman Award, though the attempt towards affordability is a selection criteria.

Note that HUD or HUD-originated funding is not a requirement for any submission, nor is the submission's use of traditional affordable housing finance mechanisms; developments that serve lower-income individuals with either market-rate or subsidized financing are eligible.

Projects submitted for this award will be subject to review and clearance within the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development to ensure adherence to ethical practices and overall professional conduct.

Deadline and Entry Fees

- The deadline for submission completion is November 20, 2015 before 5:00 PM Eastern. All deadlines are strictly observed.
- The non-refundable entry fee for this program is $375.
- Please review the Submission Preview carefully before submitting your payment. You can go back and edit your submission until the deadline but no refunds will be issued.

2016 AIA/HUD Secretary's Awards Category Descriptions

Excellence in Affordable Housing Design Award

This award recognizes architecture that demonstrates overall excellent design responses to the needs and constraints of affordable housing. Any project in which a minimum of 20 percent of occupants are at or below 80 percent of area median income and/or utilizes any current affordable housing financing vehicle is eligible. Submissions must be for housing uses only; other kinds of projects are referred to the other award categories in this call. Submissions should describe the occupant income mix, as well as funding sources (if housing finance programs are utilized).

Creating Community Connection Award

This award recognizes projects that incorporate housing within other community amenities for the purposes of either revitalization or planned growth. Submissions must be mixed-use (including housing) and mixed-income (with a minimum of 20 percent of occupants at or below 80 percent of area median income). Acceptable mixed-use developments can combine any public, private, or nonprofit use with housing; housing must be included as one of the uses. Submissions should describe the occupant income mix, as well as funding sources (if housing finance programs are utilized). If funded through a special production source that has design requirements (like HUD's HOPE VI), the submission should show how the requirements were fulfilled and surpassed.

Community-Informed Design Award

Community-informed or participatory design supports physical communities as they rebuild social structures and relationships that may have been weakened by out-migration, disinvestment, and the isolation of inner-city areas. The participatory design process establishes positive connections between and among residents, community stake-holders, local government officials, and designers—all while creating buildings and institutions with purposes that enhance community life. This award recognizes projects that focus on the design process as much as the resulting physical structures. Housing is not a required component of submissions, though developments must be in lower- or mixed-income communities. All submissions must describe funding sources, neighborhood characteristics, and the community participation process in detail.

Housing Accessibility—Alan J. Rothman Award

This award is named in remembrance of Alan J. Rothman, HUD's late senior policy analyst on housing disability issues, who devoted his life to improving housing accessibility for the disabled. Alan, born with cerebral palsy, overcame many challenges in his life, and HUD and the AIA sponsor this award to commemorate him and demonstrate both organizations' commitment to achieving housing accessibility for all Americans.

Projects eligible for this award must involve housing that demonstrates excellence in improving accessibility for people with ability constraints. Submissions must incorporate features that make housing accessible for either specific or general disability, particularly those features demonstrating universal design principles, with the maximum affordability. Submissions must include housing elements, though may extend beyond housing.

JUDGING CRITERIA AND JURY LIST

Continue

Please review and acknowledge the following information.

1

AIA/HUD Secretary's Awards

Judging Criteria

Each entry will be judged for the success with which the project has met its individual requirements, with particular emphasis on design excellence. Sustainability, affordability, innovation, addressing both natural and built context, as well as meeting the specific needs of the client are criteria that will also be evaluated in selecting up to one project in each category. Awards may not be presented in all categories. Entries will be weighed on individual merit and not in competition with one another.

Projects submitted for this award will be subject to review and clearance within the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development to ensure adherence to ethical practices and overall professional conduct. Projects that have previously received a HUD Secretary's Award in any category are not eligible.

Projects are strongly encouraged to meet the energy reduction goals established in the AIA Sustainable Architectural Practice Position Statement and the AIA 2030 Commitment, which currently call for a minimum 70 percent reduction in energy use from regional baselines.

Describe project features that enhance environments performance of your project including strategies to:

- reduce total and peak energy loads for plugs, heating, cooling, lighting, and water heating
- integrate building systems
- provide on-site renewable and alternative energy systems and /or anticipate future and carbon neutral fuel sources
- use an established rating systems to measure performance

Additional criteria per category to be considered are:

1. Excellence in Affordable Housing Design Award - This award recognizes architecture that demonstrates overall excellent design responses to the needs and constraints of affordable housing. Any project in which a minimum of 20 percent of occupants are at or below 80 percent of area median income and/or utilizes any current affordable housing financing vehicle is eligible. Submissions must be for housing uses only; other kinds of projects are referred to the other award categories in this call. Submissions should describe the occupant income mix, as well as funding sources (if housing finance programs are utilized).

Submissions will be evaluated on the following features:

- Responsiveness to client and occupant needs.
- Increased affordability as demonstrated in occupant income levels.
- Provision of a long-term asset to the client, occupants, and the community.
- Demonstration of exceptional design skill.

2. Creating Community Connection Award - This award recognizes projects that incorporate housing within other community amenities for the purposes of either revitalization or planned growth. Submissions must be mixed-use (including housing) and mixed-income (with a minimum of 20 percent of occupants at or below 80 percent of area median income). Acceptable mixed-use developments can combine any public, private, or nonprofit use with housing; housing must be included as one of the uses. Submissions should describe the occupant income mix, as well as funding sources (if housing finance programs are utilized). If funded through a special production source that has design requirements (like HUD's HOPE VI), the submission should show how the requirements were fulfilled and surpassed.

Submissions will be evaluated on the following features:

- Diversity and range of development of a mix of uses beyond housing.
- Diversity of users for non-housing functions and housing occupants, including age, ethnicity, physical ability, and income diversity.
- Development-wide design choices that support community interaction and enhance community networks (including public and alternative transportation access, public and shared-use spaces, safe and secure access and mobility, and linkage to cultural and historical surroundings).
- Demonstration of exceptional design skill.

3. Community-Informed Design Award - Community-informed or participatory design supports physical communities as they rebuild social structures and relationships that may have been weakened by out-migration, disinvestment, and the isolation of inner-city areas. The participatory design process establishes positive connections between and among residents, community stake-holders, local government officials, and designers—all while creating buildings and institutions with purposes that enhance community life.

This award recognizes projects that focus on the design process as much as the resulting physical structures. Housing is not a required component of submissions, though developments must be in lower- or mixed-income communities. All submissions must describe funding sources, neighborhood characteristics, and the community participation process in detail.

Note entries for this award do not have to be built/completed.

Submissions will be evaluated on the following features:

- Extensive participation of users and/or occupants in the actual design process.
- Documentation of participatory process and demonstration of architect's or supporting organization's facilitation skill.
- Inclusion of a diversity of community members and other relevant individuals in the design process. (Both neighborhood and participants' demographic information must be described in the submission).
- Resulting design that supports the long-term use of the project by the occupants.
- Demonstration of exceptional design skill and interpretation of community needs.

4. Housing Accessibility— Alan J. Rothman - This award is named in remembrance of Alan J. Rothman, HUD's late senior policy analyst on housing disability issues, who devoted his life to improving housing accessibility for the disabled. Alan, born with cerebral palsy, overcame many challenges in his life, and HUD and the AIA sponsor this award to commemorate him and demonstrate both organizations' commitment to achieving housing accessibility for all Americans.

Projects eligible for this award must involve housing that demonstrates excellence in improving accessibility for people with ability constraints. Submissions must incorporate features that make housing accessible for either specific or general disability, particularly those features demonstrating universal design principles, with the maximum affordability. Submissions must include housing elements, though may extend beyond housing.

Note that there are no income requirements for this award.

Submissions will be evaluated on the following features:

- Responsiveness to users with particular physical disabilities and occupancy needs.
- Exemplary or visionary design and technological responses beyond existing legal requirements for accessible design.
- Ability for individuals with a range of physical capabilities other than the occupant to use the facility.
- Documentation of accessibility requirements (such as ADA, Fair Housing Act, Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act, etc.) and their effect on design.
- Extent to which affordable techniques are addressed.
- Demonstration of exceptional design skill.

Upload Requirements

Carefully review the required project and sustainable design information and the required upload materials before submitting your payment. You can go back and edit your submission until the deadline but no refunds will be issued for submissions that are disqualified, late, or incomplete.

Regardless of award recipient status please be aware that any material submitted has the potential to be used by the AIA and/or the U.S. Department for Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for their online Best Practices section. The Best Practices section draws attention to housing development projects that promote sustainability and affordability to benefit diverse populations. Any project that credits a 2016 AIA Housing & Urban Development Secretary's Awards jury member or firm as architect, associate architect, consultant, or client is ineligible and will be disqualified if submitted.

Communication with the jury from the time of submittal to completion of the jury process by the candidate or anyone acting on their behalf is inappropriate and cause for disqualification.

Project authorship on all submissions will remain concealed throughout the deliberations of the jury. If the authorship is revealed on any of the images, plans, narrative, or file name the entry will be disqualified.

By entering my name below I acknowledge that there is no conflict of interest between the project being submitted and/or any of the jurors or jurors' firms listed above.

UPLOAD MATERIALS FOR JURY REVIEW

- Project images must be submitted in a single .PDF file not to exceed 10 MB and 24 pages.
- It is your responsibility to make sure the architect's name and/or firm name is not revealed on any of the images, plans, narratives, or file names. Failure to follow this requirement will automatically disqualify the entry.
- When possible, images should include the building in use and the following in any order to best tell the jury your project's story:
 1. Include at least one photograph of each building façade. Projects that do not include photographs of each elevation will not be considered for awards unless a valid reason for the exclusion is included.
 2. Include photographs of the site context showing all adjacent structures and/or natural features as well as the relationship of structures on sites with more than one building. Projects that do not include context photographs will not be considered for awards.
 3. Provide photographs of primary interior spaces.
 4. For projects involving renovations or alterations, provide 'before' and 'after' images. To the extent possible these images should describe the new work.
 5. Provide a site plan showing the building and its context, a building section, and floor plans with a graphic scale and an orientation arrow.
 6. Label renderings. Rendering may not be substituted for required photographs.
 7. Provide additional information such as construction details, diagrams, and/or performance data necessary to explain your project.
 8. Photographs and documents pertinent to the specific award category such as analysis of housing options for the Excellence in Housing Award; public spaces for the Creating Community Connections Award; participatory activities and plans for the Community-Informed Design Award; and accessibility design and technology features for the Alan J. Rothman Award.

Additional Tips

- Composite pages are acceptable.
- Text/notes on images/drawings are allowed.
- Consistent use of either a horizontal or portrait landscape is encouraged throughout the submission.
